How to read this report

This combined report runs in one order: work the numbers out first, then read the pairs, then the whole group. It opens with each person's own number equation, gives the combined calculation next, takes each pair in turn, and closes with the group total and the limits. The labels used in the report are explained below.

- Your Results Together: computed from each person's birth date and the details supplied — observations about this group, not about strangers.
- How to Read This Section: a short opening paragraph that says what to look at first and in what order.
- Calculation basis: how the combined numbers were added up, so you can check the arithmetic yourself.
- Notes and limits: how far this section can be used, and what it does not do.
- Next steps: what else you can look at beyond this report (the individual full report and the essence report).

Suggested reading order

Your Results Together

Each person's day, month, first two year digits and last two year digits are reduced separately, then the layers are added. The result is the combined root. Only the added totals appear here, so there is no date-splitting row.

Month total	sum of each person's month number	3
Year (first half) total	sum of each person's first two year digits	2

Day + month	5 + 3	8
Year	2 + 2	4
Combined root	8 + 4	3

> Together you come to 3: this pairing runs on talk — the chat, the things you do side by side. Busy weeks cut exactly those first, so protect them on purpose.

Your Results Together

Loves an active life, but quarrels over being too sensitive

You enjoy an active life, but being overly sensitive can spark arguments. The two of you share a passionate, positive and lively relationship. Since meeting each other, you have had your share of quarrels and friction over impulsive moments, yet you also bring each other a burst of colour never felt before. A gentle reminder: the relationship must be built on honesty and tolerance, or it may easily fall into an on-again, off-again pattern.

Impulsive. You become tense and sensitive, easily provoked and emotional, with a relationship that is good one moment and bad the next — acting on feeling, yours is a combination that needs patience and adjustment to work well.
